WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 14, 1866.

Removals from Office.

The whole subject of removals from office is certain to undergo thorough discussion during the coming session of Congress. That some restraint will be imposed on the power of arbitrary removals as now extensively exercised by the President, and that steps will be taken toward a return to the policy of the earlier Presidents in regard to the matter, is more than probable. The liability of the Executive to abuse the Federal patronage was foreseen by the authors of the Constitution, and in framing that instrument they provided an efficient remedy for it. No appointment is complete without a confirmation by the Senate. Congress may fix the time of service, or provide that the offices shall be held during good behavior. It may reduce the number of offices and cut off the pay of incumbents. Under the second section of the Second Article of the Constitution, it is authorized to take almost the whole power of appointment out of the hands of the President, if it sees fit to do so. It may assume almost unlimited control over the whole machinery of Federal patronage, and regulate it in any manner it may deem best. It may withhold the salaries of the President's appointees who have been given office during the adjournment of Congress, and may thus render the places for which there is just now a general scramble quite as undesirable as any other description of stock which belongs to the capital of the new party.

In the Federalist, No. LXXVII, Mr. Hamilton takes the position that "the consent of the Senate is necessary to displace (from office) as well as to appoint." Mr. Madison, who was a representative in the First Congress said in a debate in that body, that while the President had the right to remove officers for delinquencies, yet arbitrary removals, or removals for difference of political opinion, would, in his judgment, furnish just ground for the impeachment of the President making them. Mr. Benton assures us that John Quincy Adams never made a single removal for political cause. He also vindicates General Jackson from the charge of having removed all who stood opposed to him politically. The totality of removals during Jackson's Administration, according to this high authority, was only six hundred and ninety, and they for all causes. This number has probably been already greatly exceeded by the number of removals which Mr. Johnson has made for political differences alone. In commenting on the practise which the early Presidents followed, Mr. Benton says: "The four years' limitation law—the law which now vacates within the cycle of every presidential term the great mass of offices—was not then in force. Removals were sometimes indispensable, and the only question was the principle on which they should be made." This question engaged the anxious attention of Mr. Jefferson at the commencement of his Administration. Four days after his induction into office he wrote to Mr. Monroe: "Some removals, I know must be made. They must be as few as possible, done gradually, and bottomed on some malversation, or some inherent disqualification." In like manner he wrote to Mr. Gerry: "The instances of removal will be few, and governed by strict rule, and not by party passion. The right of opinion shall suffer no invasion from me. Those who have acted well have nothing to fear from me, however they have differed from me in opinion." On comparing this language with the practise of the present Executive, it will be seen that there has been a wide departure from the policy of the man whom Mr. Johnson calls the great apostle of Democracy, and whom he boastingly professes to follow in all things. We are nowhere informed that Mr. Jefferson, Mr. Adams, or General Jackson, passionately announced a purpose "by the grace of God to kick out of office" every man who did not support a certain policy.

During the session of 1834-35, there was a prolonged debate in the Senate on the subject of removals from office. Mr. Calhoun reported a bill in favor of curtailing the patronage of the Executive. This able statesman advocated the measure with all his powers of reason and eloquence. Clay and Webster aided with him. The latter, in his argument said that the "appointing power was held not by the President alone, but by the President and the Senate. Where officers hold their places at will, that will is necessarily the will of the appointing power. Hence it was manifest that whoever held the power of appointment, held also the power of removal." Thus it appears that the great statesmen of all parties have been in favor of reducing the Executive patronage. There can be no question of the right of Congress to proceed in the premises, nor can there be any doubt that, after having witnessed the arbitrary course of the President since the last adjournment, it will be disposed to put a check on his capricious exercise of the power of removal.

The Proposed Rule of Representation.

We take the following out of the Herald:

That "each voter in the North, or West, or East, is entitled to just exactly as much political power as each voter in the South" is precisely what Mr. Johnson proposed and exactly what Congress rejected. The President's plan of representation based upon voters, would allow Massachusetts nine Representatives and California seven; the amendments proposed by Congress, of representation based upon population, would give Massachusetts twelve and California two Representatives—Massachusetts a Representative for each 14,000 voters; California a Representative for each 60,000." By the President's plan, "each voter as an individual, is entitled to his representation upon an equality;" by the Congressional plan each voter in Massachusetts counts for representation equal to over four voters in California and two voters in the North-western States.

What are the facts? Massachusetts has 175,000 voters and ten Representatives, giving one Representative for every 17,500 voters. California has 105,000 voters, and at present but three Representatives; or one Representative for every 35,000 voters. This apportionment was made six years ago when the voting population of California was proportionately greater than that of any other State in the Union. But the ratio between the voters and the whole population which exists in the older States is being rapidly established in California. In proof of this it may be mentioned that the voting population of California decreased nearly 15,000 from 1860 to 1864, while the actual population was no doubt largely increased during the same period. By the next apportionment (which will be made after the census of 1870,) California will probably gain one or two Representatives by the increase of her aggregate population, though her voting population will be no larger but perhaps smaller than it was in 1860. By the same apportionment, Massachusetts will gain nothing, but will probably lose one Representative. As we have shown above, one voter in Massachusetts has just double the power in choosing Representatives which one voter has in California; but this state of things is rapidly changing, and after the next census representation will be nearly equalized in the two States. The assertion that 14,000 voters in Massachusetts are equal to 60,000 voters in California is an exaggeration which admits of no excuse. Nobody who cares for preserving a reputation for truth would make so wild a statement. The amendments proposed by Congress, though not basing representation directly on voters, will practically amount to that. Mr. Johnson, it is true, once proposed an amendment making voters the basis of representation, but such has been his fickleness and duplicity that nobody believes he was sincere in it, any more than he was sincere in declaring that traitors should be punished and their plantations sequestrated. Andrew Johnson is neither in Democratic nor a Republican authority; therefore it is not necessary for anybody to quote him.

Free Speech.

We find the following remarkable language in the New York World:

The chief and serious dangers to freedom of speech, in this, as in all other countries, have come from those wielding governmental power. A Republican administration, that of Lincoln and Seward, first struck down freedom of speech with the brutal arm of power.

The administration of Lincoln "first struck down freedom of speech!" One would think the writer of that sentence, began his knowledge of things earthly since the dawn of 1861, and had studied nothing outside of such literature as is furnished by the Brick Pomeroy branch of the Copperhead descendants of the "father of lies." Is it possible the World writer expected that assertion to effect a lodgement in the belief of any human being born before 1861? What has become of the history of the slaveholding States down to the resumption of United States military authority in 1865? Is it possible that all memory of the lynchings of Northern men and women in those States under the rule of Democracy, has faded from the memory of man? Is there nothing left of the slaveholders' codes against the circulation of Northern newspapers, to rise up and shame the World for that shameful untruth? Where are all the Northern men and women who suffered stripes and expulsion for only the crime of speaking their convictions against the "Divine institution?" Is there no remaining evidence to convict the defenders of slavery, of having taken the lives of "abolitionists" for exercising free speech? Is it no longer possible to prove that anti-slavery men could not possess their property or lives in security in any Southern State previous to 1861? The exclusion of free speech from mail the slaveholding States was the blackened page of American history, till the administration of Abraham Lincoln, in crushing the rebellion, also opened up the privilege to every citizen of the United States to say what he pleased short of treason, wherever he pleased to go. The administration of Abraham Lincoln never suppressed freedom of speech. It never went farther than to check—too incompletely—the license of speech which treason prompted. For shame, ye hypocritical babblers about the striking down of free speech!

TRIAL OF JEFF. DAVIS.—We hear frequent complaints from the Copperhead press, that Jeff. Davis is kept in confinement, and refused a trial. The complaint is, in truth, against the confinement and not against the fact of no trial being had. No trial is wanted. His release by pardon or without conditions would please Copperheads a thousand times better than the assurance of a speedy trial. The Washington Intelligencer is afraid these frequent complainings will have a bad effect upon Copperhead estimation of the President. To relieve him from the odium of delaying the trial, it fulminates an occasional article against Judge Underwood, Chief Justice Chase, and the "Judiciary" generally, for unreasonable delay. In its issue of Sept. 24th, the Intelligencer says: "The matter is all in the hands of the proper judicial officers, and is beyond the reach of the President." The primary object of this declaration is to relieve the President of Southern odium for the fact that Jeff. Davis is still in confinement. If he were to escape, and the proper officers should decline or fail to make an effort to recapture him, we should hear no word of censure for such official negligence, for the reason that public censure might stir up somebody to place him again in arrest—the very thing not wished for.

But the Intelligencer states what is untrue when it says the whole matter is "beyond the reach of the President. In the dispatches dated Fortress Monroe, November 3d, it is stated that "The parole of Jeff. Davis, giving him the privilege of the grounds of the fortress during the day, has been extended through Executive clemency, by removing all surveillance over him and the guards from his room in Carroll Hall at night. Instructions to this effect have been sent from Washington," etc.

If the "whole matter" were in the hands of the judicial officers, "Executive clemency" would have nothing to do with the business of parole or the extension of parole privileges. These latter things pertain to military authority and not to the judicial. The fact is, the "whole matter" is in the hands of the President and he alone—as he might have pardoned and surely will pardon, Jeff. Davis—is responsible for the continued confinement of Jeff. Davis without a trial. If the latter is an innocent man, as held by the copperheads, then he has been most fearfully outraged. If he is a criminal, as all the rest of the world knows, then the country and the majesty of the law, have been terribly outraged in that Jeff. Davis has not been long, long since, both tried and hanged.

Andy Johnson and the Starving Irish.

The Detroit Post has exhumed the following fact in Andrew Johnson's record:

In the winter of 1846-7, during the Irish famine, it was proposed in Congress to appropriate a sum of money to purchase corn and flour to send to the starving people of Ireland. The bill passed the Senate and came to the House, where its title was read, when Andrew Johnson, of Tennessee, objected to it on the ground that it was "unconstitutional" to feed starving Irishmen and women, and moved to lay the bill on the table. When this vote was taken, Andrew Johnson voted to lay the bill on the table. In spite of Andrew Johnson, the American people did send several ship-loads of corn and flour to Ireland to aid the starving people of that Island.

It is probable the Fenians remembered that, when they voted the other day in Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois, that Andrew Johnson might keep his "bread and butter" for rebels and their sympathising Copperhead friends. As he refused aid to starving Irishmen in 1847, so Irishmen rejoot his bread and butter now.

The Richmond Examiner says:

"We want it distinctly understood that, having failed to get away from this Government, we intend now not only to stand by it ourselves, but to aid in making all the others do the same whenever we are called upon to do so. Let the Radicals bear this in mind when they attempt "rebellion" after they are beaten at the fall elections."

If impudence could be more portentous than this, the world has never yet seen an example of it. The Examiner is quite like the convict who, as he looked through the grating of his door, reproved his keeper, and advised him to be an honest and moral man in future.

A meeting was called in New Orleans lately to refute Gov. Wells' statements that Union men are persecuted and in danger in that city. Some of the speakers actually had the impudence to affirm that the kindest feeling exists among the people of Louisiana for the Government and for the people of the North! Evidently those innocents had never heard of the New Orleans massacre.

A. JOHNSON'S LOGIC.—We find the argument of the President's recent speeches succinctly stated as follows:

First—The rebel States never were out of the Union, and by no possibility could they go out.

Second—The rebel States can only be brought back into the Union by means of "my policy."

Third—There never were any rebel States.

Among the many new branches of manufacturing recently started in San Francisco, is that of making and re-cutting files. The establishment was started by Durning & Fisher, and their chief business at present consists in cutting anew old files, though they manufacture some new ones.

The sole effort of the Union soldiers who took part in the Johnson movement seems to have been to offer a suitable apology to the Southern rebels for having ever borne arms against them.

DATES TO NOVEMBER 13.

Wheat and Flour—Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Wheat—Heavy and less active. Flour—Opened heavy and 20 cts lower, and extra is lower with fair demand.

The weekly bank statement shows the following increase of loans, $4,000,000; increase of specie, $1,000,000; increase of circulation, $5,000,000; decrease of legal tenders, $3,250,000; increase of deposits, $250,000.

There is considerable complaint in the dry goods trade that accounts are not easily collected and that extensions are asked for.

The Jumel Will Case.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Jumel will case was concluded to-day in the Supreme Court. The jury returned a verdict that the testator was of unsound mind when she drew the will. Madame Jumel will be remembered as the widow of Aaron Burr.

Foreign.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The steamer Saxony brings Southampton dates to November 31.

Mrs. Lincoln and son had arrived in Scotland and both were well.

The cholera had broken out afresh at Woolwich and Charlestown, and also lightly in Edinburg and Yorkshire.

NEWS BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Consols, 89¾; five-twenties, 69¾. Despatches received say the war in Japan is ended. The death of the Tycoon is confirmed.

"Of what use are forms?" exclaimed a petulent legislator to Dr. Franklin; "you cannot deny that they are often empty things." "Well, my friend, and so are barrels, but, nevertheless, they have their uses," quietly replied the Doctor.

There is something exquisite in the Yankee's reply when he was asked whether he had just crossed the Alps: "Wall, now you call my attention to the fact, I guess I did pass risin' ground."

Be persuaded to use NEWELL'S PULMONARY SYRUP, and you will not regret it.

WHERE SHALL WE GO FOR PICTURES?—To ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL'S GALLERY, 89 First Street, of course. It is the only place where you are sure of being pleased. Everything emanating from this Gallery possesses the peculiar charm of attracting the attention of the most unsophisticated observer. All classes of the community visit this institution daily. SUN PEARLS, ALBUM CARDS, MELAINOTYPES, and every other style executed in the most superior manner.

LIFE INSURANCE.—Within the last few weeks a large number of our citizens have availed themselves of the benefit of a Life Insurance, which certainly is very praiseworthy, but one of those Heavy BEAVER SUITS, for sale at the ST. LOUIS CLOTHING STORE, will prolong Life and destroy with the necessity of a Life Policy.

THE CO-PARTNERSHIP BETWEEN KELLOGG & ROHR, at Milwaukie, IS NOT DISSOLVED, as heretofore published by Elisha Kellogg, nor has there been any fraud committed, unless it be by Kellogg himself. The cause of said notice was that I sold goods to pay certain just debts of the firm for labor, the settlement of which he was opposed to. I hereby caution any one against doing any business with him on our partnership account, until settlement is made between us.

VIGILANCE REVIVED.—It seems that our Vancouver friends are also troubled by some members of the shoplifting fraternity. Various articles had been lost by the merchants and citizens of that place, which remained unaccounted for until within a few days past, when suspicion was excited by certain parties, and a thorough search of premises made, when, in a house upon a ranch near the town, many goods, which, in our absence, had been placed upon the shelves, and a list of the stolen articles were discovered. The suspected parties were arrested and yesterday underwent an examination.

Since writing the above we learn the following particulars: Mr. Ramsey, a farmer, who lives at the mouth of the Willamette, on Monday discovered a couple of men very suspiciously engaged on Diamond Island, at the mouth of the Willamette river, packing a large number of sheep skins, hides and tallow, no doubt preparatory to shipment to this market. Mr. R. went up to Vancouver and informed the authorities about the matter, when it was discovered that a large number of the aforementioned articles were stolen from the slaughter house of Mr. E. Huggart, at Vancouver; thereupon Sheriff Morse of Clark county, went down yesterday to the thieves' headquarters, where he found two hombres by the name of Jones, and "Bill," packing and storing their ill-gotten gains in a skiff, which they also had stolen. They were arrested and brought to Vancouver, where they were to have an examination last evening. The property was found to consist of 60 sheep skins, 8 beef hides, a quantity of tallow and a number of smaller articles; and it is the opinion of the officers that more stolen property is stashed on the island, as a large number of sheep in the vicinity have been sufferers of late from thieves. Diamond Island is well adapted for a hiding place for notorious thieves, and the pirate La Fitte would have chosen better headquarters should he have appeared in this latitude.

CIRCUIT COURT.—E. D. SHATTUCK JUDGE.—Tuesday, Nov. 13th, 1866.—W. Meek vs. Dorance B. Borman and A. P. Miller; sheriff's sale of real estate confirmed. Same order in the suit of E. J. Northrup vs. H. J. McEntire. Same vs. Mitchell vs. Marcus Neil. Also D. Crain and H. Haworth vs. S. Farman. Judgment by default entered to be entered in the following cases: Jos. Openheimer vs. J. Kingreen for $200; H. L. Pittock vs. L. W. Eelsor, for $300 and interest, and for foreclosure of mortgage and sale of lands; Elfelt, Weil & Co. vs. H. Wolf for $972; Schwabacher Bros. & Co. vs. G. S. Smith, for $1,297 24; Charmer & Bro. vs. W. C. Wolf, for $84; State of Oregon vs. Wm. Kearn; Defendant failed to answer for threats of violence to Mrs. Kearn, Wm. Graden, J. P. The Court having heard the testimony, defendant was discharged and recognized. Indictments presented by the Grand Jury, all of which were endorsed not true bills—Clemens, Mr. Peter Obershaw, and Frank Soule, discharged.

THE BASIN.—The new improvements upon the Basin at Upper City, upon which the P. P. Co. have for some time been engaged, are now completed, and the boats will in future be brought down to the warehouse for receiving and discharging freight. On yesterday morning the People's steamers, Union and Echo, were brought down into the basin. The Union was very heavily loaded, and the basin as completed is a convenient and substantial improvement. Passengers in future can come down into the basin with their hats on, and not have to employ, as formerly, a small boy to hold their hats down when about to step out of their vehicle for the frightful apparition of the hills, and the danger of the boat going on a voyage of discovery down the river.

LAST NIGHT.—The proposed return match game of base ball between the Clackamas Base Ball Club, of Oregon City, and the Pioneer Club of this city, is set for to-day, and will take place, weather permitting. The steamer Gazelle will leave from Oregon City for the purpose of bringing down the Oregon City Club. Should the day prove at all propitious, all concerned will have a lively and interesting meeting. We understand the Pioneers have made arrangements for a plenty of guests, and have placed upon the field a sufficient to accommodate 150 persons. The game will no doubt be a very attractive one, and a large crowd is expected. The game will be played upon the ball ground in East Portland, and will commence at 10 o'clock.

NUISANCE.—Much complaint is made of a man-trap on Front street, near the Penitentiary. Last spring an excavation was made for the purpose of finding sand in order to build a sewer in the fill. The excavation is about twenty-five feet deep, and directly in the line of travel, as is considered by those residing in that portion of the city, as dangerous. The place is not well lighted, and most persons well acquainted with the situation, are liable to walk into it. We would suggest that those interested send a petition to the City Council, representing the facts in the case. This will, no doubt, be the speediest method to remedy the evil.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.—Our friends in the Grand Ronde valley are advancing rapidly in agricultural pursuits. A. B. [illegible], Esq., brought over the mountains on his last trip a splendid pear, raised by Mr. Braspsell, on his ranch, and picked from a tree only six months transplanted in his orchard. This is the first fruit that has crossed the Cascade Mountains from that district, and they will soon be able to supply themselves in this line.

—Very wise and learned Professors tell us that we had a brilliant display of Nature's fireworks last evening. So we went out, and the consequence was we were drenched with rain; however, we have satisfactory evidence that when Messrs. Mohasdoffer & Co., 74 Front street, tell us as they do to-day, that they have just received a splendid new and attractive assortment of clothing, hats and caps, that the public, and all who desire better headquarters should be have opened in this latitude.

CIRCUIT COURT.—In recorder's court before Judge [illegible] yesterday morning appeared—Dabolin, charged with drunk and disorderly conduct on Front street at the Hotel. He was fined $5 and costs, and in default went to jail for two days. This decision in the case of Alexander Thompson charged with assault and battery, by Mrs. Alexander, was again deferred.

"ARRIVAL OF TROOPS.—We learn that companies E and F of the 8th Regiment of Cavalry, U. S. A., with [illegible] horses, under command of Capt. J. H. Gaither, left Fort Vancouver yesterday morning on the steamer Wm. Taylor. They are destined for Camp Warner and Fort Lapwai.

RUSTIC.—We see that H. Martin & Co. have removed to the large sales room adjoining the one formerly occupied by them. They have now an opportunity to dispose of the stock of liquors. Let their old friends call upon them in their new location and they will find that they still keep the best brands in the market.

THE MAY.—The steamer Wilson G. Hunt was detained a few trip by the transportation of the troops destined for the North and at this Quarantine. She did not reach her wharf last evening until 8 o'clock. She brought about fifty passengers.

AUCTION SALE.—There will be held at the auction-rooms of Mr. A. B. Richardson, to-day at 10 o'clock, a large assortment of groceries, liquors, etc.

THE DALLES.—The steamer Senator brought last evening from Upper city 105 boxes apples, 4 trunks merchandise, 25 sks flour and 9 sks nuts.

THE MAY.—The steamer Oriflamme is now due, but will not be [illegible] up to the hour of going to press.

NEW.—With the steamer Oriflamme Barrow's are receiving some of the best made sole leather trunks and valises, and also a large assortment of fine [illegible] paper collars, and rubber neck ties; call them a call.

PACIFIC HOUSE.—Mons. Pierre Mencliet has just newly fitted up private apartments at the Lafayette House for the accommodation of Ladies and Families, or parties of Ladies and Gentlemen, and is prepared to furnish the delicacies of the season to those wishing. Entrance on Stark street, opposite the Willamette Theatre. He is also prepared to furnish suppers for balls, &c., on the shortest notice. n[illegible]5

THE HAVANAS.—The inimitable humorist "Mark Twain" thus describes our neighbors of the Pacific Islands:

"They are a strange race, anyhow, these natives. They are amazingly unselfish and hospitable. To a stranger who visits them they freely offer their houses, food, beds, and often wives and daughters. A Kanaka who has starved two days and been offered a dollar to sell it for poi, will divide it with his friends to help him devour it. When a Kanaka lights his pipe he only takes one whiff himself, and then passes it around from one to another. The example of white selfishness does not affect their native unselfishness, any more than the example of white virtue does their native licentiousness. Both traits are born in them—are in their blood and bones, and cannot be bred out."

SUICIDE OF A SPIRITUALIST.—A Spiritualist named Richard Ayers committed suicide lately in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, hanging himself to the balustrade of the stairway in the second story of his residence. He had for a long time been laboring under a kind of mania which led him to believe that his body was bewitched by some adverse spirits. He threatened frequently to "dispose of his body, that his spirit might receive fair play." One day he took a clothesline and went up stairs immediately after breakfast, saying to his wife there was no use in delaying it any longer; his body must be disposed of." His wife thought little of the remark, but afterward, when she went upstairs, she found him hanging quite dead.

THANKSGIVING.—The San Francisco Examiner, a rebel paper, is indulging in threats about this Eastern, as for instance:

"It is more than probable that should the pap patriot, Avery, still keep up his rebellion against the Government, the community will be startled by a most terrible denouement. There is one thing very certain—the Administration, either directly or through its appointees, will not law it with the radical rebel. Alcatraz still stands and the few forces of bayonets is not wholly ex-

THE TEETH! THE TEETH!
DR. J. R. CARDWELL,
Having lately returned from San Francisco, would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to meet the demands for DENTAL WORK. All the Latest Improvements and Inventions in Dentistry will be found in his office, and all operations in the Dental Art will be personally attended by Dr. C. As to his previous efforts he would respectfully refer to those cases that have already come under his management. aplidtf

No REMEDY IN THE WORLD ever came into such universal use, or has so fully won the confidence of mankind, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for the cure of Coughs, colds and Consumption.

What Experienced Mill Men think of the Portable Steam Saw Mills built by the Oregon Iron Works!
PORTLAND, Oct. 18th, 1866.
TO THE OREGON IRON WORKS:
Gentlemen:—The Portable Steam Saw Mill which we purchased of you last spring for Ten d'Oreille Lake, has been in operation during the past season, and has more than met our expectations in its performance. With three men, we turn out from three to four thousand feet, and with five men, five thousand feet per day of ten hours; and we take pleasure in recommending these mills as the most SUBSTANTIAL, DESIRABLE AND PERFECT MILLS IN USE, and especially adapted to the wants of this country, on account of their compact form, ease of transportation and the facility with which they can be set up and put in operation. Although subjected to the most severe task, no repairs have been required.

Consumption like the Rattle-Snake, always gives warning of its approach. A hacking cough, dull pain in the chest, difficulty of breathing, are the indications that there is more or less irritation of the Lungs. If this be neglected, and go on until pustules are formed, followed by tubercles, which sometimes eat off the blood vessels, Death will be the result. ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will heal all the irritated parts, allay the inflammation, removing the phlegm and matter. Thus stopping the cough and preventing fatal Consumption. For sale by all Medicine Dealers. nov8-dlm

Squandered Lives

The fisherman wades in the surges
The sailor sails over the sea
The soldier steps bravely to battle,
The woodsman lays ax to the tree

They are each of the breed of the heroes,
The manhood attempered in strife
Strong hands that go lightly to labor
True hearts that take comfort in life

In each is the seed to replenish
The world with the vigor it needs—
The nurture of honest affections
The impulse to generous deeds

But the shark drinks the blood of the fisher,
The sailor is dragged in the sea
The soldier lies cold by his cannon,
The woodman is crushed by his tree

Each prodigal life that is wasted
In sundry achievements unseen,
But lengthens the days of the coward,
And strengthens the crafty and mean

The blood of the noblest is lavished
That the selfish a profit may find,
God sees the lives that are squandered,
And we to his wisdom are blind.

—Bayard Taylor

A Haunted House

A house on Ida Hill, Troy, has for many years borne the reputation of being haunted, and as the past few weeks have brought out new developments, we may lay them before our readers The house in question stands on Fourteenth street, a little distance from Christie, and is a plain two-story brick house with back basement, and enclosed shops for each story Two families occupy the house, both of whom testify to many strange things, both concurrently and diverse No buildings adjoin it on the south, but on the north two new ones recently erected by William Cary, are within a distance of a few feet. A good lock is on the front door, and the same on the back, and two or three doors, always locked in the night time, must be passed through to go from one part to the other. The owner of the building is a well known tanner, living on the Hollow Road, and he has owned the building for about eight years, purchasing it far below its value on account of the reputation it then had. The neighborhood is very quiet and orderly, and very few disturbances ever took place there, and as the families are not rich it is scarcely probable that any burglar would take the trouble to enter, even if he knew the way was clear The original owner of the place, it is said, was killed in some unknown manner, and for three or four years after the erection of the building, families could not be got to stop in it more than a month or two at a time The mother of the family up stairs, Mrs. X, has known the reputation of the house for a long time, and has at times observed strange things which could not be accounted for, but has kept the information from her family. The family down stairs, that of Mrs Y, have also known these things for a long time, but have considered these disadvantages counterbalanced by the consideration of cheap rent.

The most remarkable manifestation they have witnessed was three weeks ago, Theodore X, who was in ill health, had gone to Saratoga to spend a short time He usually slept at home in a small bedroom, off the back parlor, in a bed with his brother, Smith. The former is about 22 years of age and the latter about 18, and Smith is moreover a stout and active boy, allowing his mind to dwell on no nonsense

On Sunday evening, when all but himself and mother were at church, he went to his bed room, and turned back, saying, "Mother I don't want to sleep in there to night." She knowing no reason for his action, began ridiculing him and he went again to his room, soon returning, however She inquired what the matter was and he said he couldn't sleep in that apartment. By dint of persuasion she induced him again to go to the dormitory, but on his return the third time he said, "Mother, I did not want to tell you before why I do not want to sleep in there. The first time I went out I met Theodore face to face, the second he was just going into our room." In accordance with her request, although the mother did not believe it, and tried to dissuade him from the belief, a bed was made in another part of the house, and he soon went to sleep. At the conclusion of the church services, the young ladies of the house came home and went to bed, without seeing Smith About midnight the host being overpowering, they got up and made their bed on the floor of the kitchen, and between 12 and 1 o'clock, both being awake and looking in the same direction, the door opened and a man walked in with a slow and solemn tread Turning around, after he entered the room, he walked to the foot of the bed, and put his hands on both of them. This he did very quietly and slowly, with an abstracted look One of the girls said he had a gash in the side of his face, and the blood was flowing from it down his shoulder; but the other, who had a better view, declared that the blood ran down to his feet. On his touching them they screamed simultaneously, having been too much frightened before, and the figure raised up from the floor and floated out the window, at a point some 18 feet above the ground.

In another room the mother, who was all alone, had her bed moved and sat down again The bed occupied by the brothers was examined in the morning, and no appearance of any one lying down there was discoverable. All the doors were locked as usual, and no marks of any visitor were to be seen The apparition seen by the girls did not resemble that viewed by the brothers, as it was of a man of much taller and of different figure The same night at Saratoga, between 12 and 1 o'clock, the brother there saw a black form, but without distinguishable shape, move out of the window without apparent effort, the window being a considerable distance above ground.

It is proper to state that this family is a well known one in Troy, of undoubted veracity, and their word is as good as their oath. The mother is a member of the Congress St. Church, and bears the highest character. They are personally known to the writer of this; and their names will be given to any one desiring to gratify a legitimate curiosity.—Albany Argus.

A NEWSBOY ON RISTORI.—"La Peccrin," of the New York Courier, employed several critics to "do" Ristori's first appearance in New York, and the views of "our boot black," "our news boy," and our "peanut boy," are submitted to the public. The following is the view of the news boy:

The character of Medea is a hefty one. I remember to have seen it tackled at the Old Bowery by Miss Hathaway, and I think I also paid a quarter to get into Lucy Keene's and saw Ellen Heron lift it. The impression it leaves on the mind, if you ain't growed yet, is that you wouldn't like to have such an old lady as that for your mother Lots of fellers have wrote about Medea. I read of him in some stick papers. Old U Ripdyke began it, and a French fellar finished him up. He wanted Rachel, the great French forrin actor woman, to play her, but she was afraid, and nobody didn't tackle into her till Ristory came along. Ristory knocked spots out of her to onest, and has been doing it ever since. She did it before all the first class perfishers in Europe, and before a large portion of our perfishers this week—mind she made her debut. I've alers had the hi'ster among my fellers of both on hand to first nights, and I couldn't miss Ristory. I am glad I didn't—though it cost me a whole month's salary off very O—ver My—salary. Ristory is some, she is! She can tear around splendiferous. She's got a splendid lot of hair—if it's all her own; more n Helen Western ever had, and don't she shake it, about when she gets her mad up 'agin. Jason, the man who wants to take her little babies away from her, I tell you just Her voice wouldn't make a whisper into the New Bowery, though, and she ain't pretty at all The gal I likes best is the one who plays the maid—she are sugar! Id like to serve her with papers. She's a nice actor, too If she'd only been named Ristory, I think she'd a been some! There's my sentiments; and I don't care who knows 'em

VIENNA IN WAR TIME.—A Vienna letter says that during the war that city has been little better than a camp. During the month of June 4,000 men, 180 officers, and 2,000 horses were fed daily. In July 400 officers, 15,000 men and 3,000 horses were provided for daily, and seven Generals' rations, 588 staff officers' rations, 3,142 field officers' and 360,000 soldiers' rations, with 80,637 horse rations were provided, at a cost of 917,714 florins. In August the cost increased to 127,000 florins; In the district of Vienna called Leopoldstadt quarters were found for 58 Generals, 189 staff, 1,583 officers, 108 army surgeons and 73,623 non commissioned officers and privates, from May till August, and not less than 190,000 men were quartered in the district since the beginning of the war.

SHERMAN AND THE REPORTER.—The Buffalo Courier says

As General Sherman recently was stepping on the cars to leave Toronto, to him comes an energetic, mutton chopped reporter for a Toronto paper, and whipping out pencil and note book, says "General Sherman, will you have the kindness to give me your views upon the Fenian question?"

Sherman—"Go to —!"

And he stepped on the train and left the reporter to meditate over his blasted item

Chief Justice Handy of Mississippi has rendered a decision in which he declares the civil rights bill to be unconstitutional The case was one in which a freedman had been arrested and fined for carrying fire-arms, contrary to an act of the Legislature directed especially at the negroes The freedman was remanded by him to the custody of the Sheriff and ordered to pay the cost of the proceedings A conflict of authority must result, if the Federal officers of the State perform their duties

The Lawrence (Kansas) Tribune says Rev E Nute has got one of the army locusts in a bottle, and will take it to Professor Agassiz for examination The specimen has a body two inches long, and a breadth of thorax five-eighths of an inch

Practical Reflections on the Constitutional Amendment

[From the New Orleans Picayune.]

From the tone of the Northern press, and from the evident drift of Northern sentiment, the ultimate adoption of the Constitutional amendment may be contemplated as one of the most probable contingencies of the future. It would certainly not be prudent for the ten excluded States to base argument, calculation and policy on the assumption of the contrary event. The three fourths of the Legislatures whose ratifying vote are requisite for the adoption of the amendment may be found outside the boundaries of those States as soon as one more State is created by Congress from out lying Territories. And the facility with which this may be done and the readiness of the North to resort to it as an expedient in reference to a special purpose, have been manifested clearly enough in the proceedings of the present Congress and preceding Congresses But is hardly necessary to speculate as to particular steps to be taken for reaching that end if the North, represented in the general triumph of the Republican party in State as well as Congressional elections and conscious of its power to crush opposition within, and to prescribe measures of reconstruction or conditions of restoration, should insist upon the Constitutional amendment as such a measure or such a condition In some way most assuredly, in that case the adoption of the amendment would become an accomplished fact.

It is hardly premature, therefore, to consider what would be the actual political situation of the lately slaveholding States under the Constitution thus amended The first section of the amendment is a translation into Constitutional form of the principle of equality before the law declared in the Civil Rights bill In that particular then, the situation would not be practically changed The fourth section, endorsing the validity of the national debt, is a clear superfluity Contentions do not make or unmake debts, and however valid and binding a public debt may be in law and conscience, a Constitutional assurance of its payment, in the absence of more substantial guarantees, is worth about as much as an insolvent's oath added to his bond. The declaration in the same section against debts and claims incurred in aid of the rebellion, or on account of the emancipation, affects no question which is practical now, or likely to be practical in the course of many years hereafter, if at all

The second and third sections comprise those features that would come under immediate consideration and call for practical conclusions A State could elect no local officers nor send Senators and Representatives to Congress who had taken an official oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and subsequently aided directly or indirectly the rebellion It has been asserted that this disqualification would exclude from office the most intelligent and competent persons in the South, and Judge Sharkey, of Mississippi, seems to think that it would be extremely difficult to find in that State a sufficient number of qualified white citizens for its various official positions, either local or national. We much incline to doubt the correctness of this opinion In every Southern State there were always numbers of intelligent, educated, thrifty and enterprising men who never had or sought occasion to take an official oath, and who were none the less respectable and trustworthy in public esteem on that account The disqualification in question would have the effect of bringing into public service persons of this class, and also of another class which consists mainly of young men, whose tender years precluded them from office before the war, though perhaps not from the Confederate armies as volunteers or as conscripts It is scarcely to be doubted that the two classes would afford abundant material for all immediate needs in respect to official competency and incumbency

The virtual effect of the second section is to augment to the electoral for the present qualified population, basis of representation. Under it Southern States would have the option of a representation in the ratio of its total population, a ratio that would give to the ten excluded States about sixty representatives, or a representation based on the number of qualified voters, in a system of suffrage restricted to white male inhabitants of competent age, in which case the same States would not have more than about forty representatives. There would be still another alternative they would prescribe uniform qualifications for the elective franchise, containing educational and property tests such as would admit to the ballot the great mass of Southern whites, and would exclude therefrom at least a majority of Southern blacks. They might thus calculate on some increase of their electoral numbers without fear of the ascendency of negro voters anywhere In deed, South Carolina is the only State, it is likely, in which, at present, the negro population outnumbers the white. There white population is outnumbered to the extent of one fourth It would be clearly impositive, therefore, for that State, no matter how urgently it might desire increase of representation, to extend unqualified suffrage to whites and blacks. But in other States, supposing the admissability of negro suffrage, for consideration, to be conceded, the same danger of negro ascendency in politics could not exist.

At all events, each State could adjust its electoral system to suit its peculiar condition, and it would be possible for the aggregate Southern representation to be increased, or at least to escape serious curtailment, under the operation of the amendment by reason of the lately slaveholding States, such as Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and others, enlarging their representative basis through negro suffrage, even though South Carolina and two or three more, including Louisiana, should adhere strictly to white suffrage.

Yet it is well to consider that in no event can a Southern representation, large or small, avail for Southern interests without exterior political support The prospect of the Southern domination in Congress so often pictured to the Northern mind, where it is but a mere election device, is one of the wildest visions of sectional fanaticism. Perhaps forty or fifty Southern votes would be sufficient to enable the Executive veto to arrest further radical legislation, but sixty, seventy or eighty Southern votes would be powerless to effect legislation opposed on sectional grounds by Northern members, who number nearly two hundred, if we count amongst them the Western representatives

The main hope of the South for accomplishing wholesome legislation in Congress is in a coalition of Southern and Western votes on questions in which the interests of the West and of the South are identical In respect to such a coalition both have reason to deprecate a curtailment and to desire an increase of Southern representation

SUDDEN DEATH OF RAREY, THE CELEBRATED HORSE-TAMER.—The celebrated horse-tamer J S Rarey, died very suddenly at 195 St Clair street, on Thursday afternoon. Last December his health was very materially impaired by a severe stroke of palsy Since that date he has traveled constantly, hoping that a change of climate, water and diet, with the best treatment that could be procured, would restore his former youthful vigor Mrs. Williams, a widow, and a niece of Rarey's, was his attendant, and was always unceasing in her efforts to make his last days as pleasant as possible. They arrived in Cleveland six weeks ago, took rooms at the Weddell House, sought the the advice of an eminent physician of his city Finding it difficult to get up and down the stair way at the Weddell to take his accustomed horseback ride each day, they procured apartments at Mrs Sanborn's, on St. Clair street, where the physician continued to visit daily Until an hour before his death Rarey retained, to a great extent, his usual brilliant colloquial powers, and often amused and edified those by whom he was constantly surrounded with stories of his adventures in this and foreign lands Not he believed the hour of death was near at hand and frequently alluded to the fact that he had all heart could wish for except health

At two o'clock on Thursday he walked out on the street, but returned soon after, and complained of a pain in his head After being seated a few minutes he said, "I am dying" Mrs Williams called for help, laid him on a lounge, summoned the nearest physician, while a messenger was also sent for the regular physician Life lasted one hour and twenty minutes He spoke but a few words, and these were relative to his mother His brother arrived soon after and conveyed the corpse to Gravesport, near Columbus, where the deceased had erected a fine house preparatory to retiring from the excitement of an eventful life He was in his thirty eighth year and died a bachelor.—Cleveland Herald.

A STRAW FROM VICTORIA.—A member of the late Legislature, and an important official of Vancouver Island, in a letter to a friend in San Francisco, under date of October 22d says

"Victoria I have resolved to leave, and to leave in all human probability forever, unless some more hopeful signs appear in the commercial horizon * * * There is a general exodus talked of, and I confess with some show of good reason In my judgment there are at the present time, upon Wharf street alone, three solvent men The whole commercial fabric totters to the very foundation, and when the crash comes it will be such as Vancouver Island has never witnessed before The failures of the past seven will amount to over a million dollars The future looms with dark, lowering clouds without a ray of light, unless Vancouver is turned over to the Yankees in which case a magnificent and glorious harvest lies before us"

Eleven wives and forty seven children mourn the recent death of a Mormon Bishop.

ROGER WILLIAMS—SEARCH FOR HIS REMAINS—HIS BODY SAID BURIED THE ROOTS OF A TREE—A CURIOUS INCIDENT Ninety years after his death in 1774 steps were taken to erect to him some suitable monument, but the storms of the revolution came on and the work was forgotten But recently the question has been again and anew stirred Williams may yet at last have some outward sign to mark his greatness and perpetuate his name During a period of 183 years not even a rough stone has been set up to mark the grave of the founder of Rhode Island, till the present he calmly had almost been forgotten, and it will only be ascertained after the most careful investigation to suffice it to say, however, the spot was found and the exhumation was made a short time ago,—though there was little to exhume. On a raising of the turf from the surface of the ground the dim outlines of the seven graves, contained within one square rod surrounded the burial ground of Roger Williams In colonial times each family had its own burial ground, which was usually near the family residence. Three of the seven graves were those of children, the remaining four those of adults The easterly grave was identified as that of Mr Williams On digging down into the charnel house," it was found that every thing had passed into oblivion The shapes of the coffins could only be traced by a black line of carbonaceous matter, the thickness of the edges of the sides of the coffins, with their ends distinctly defined The trusted remains of the hinges and nails, with a few fragments of wood and a single round knot, was all that could be gathered from his grave In the grave of his wife there was not a trace of anything save a single lock of braided hair, which had survived the lapse of more than 180 years Near the grave stood a venerable apple tree, when and by whom planted is not known This tree had sent two of its roots into the graves of Mr and Mrs Williams The larger root had pushed its way through the earth till it reached the precise spot occupied by the skull of Roger Williams. There making a turn, as if going round the skull, it followed the direction of the backbone to the hips Here it divided into two branches, sending one along each leg to the feet, where they both turned upward to the toes One of these roots had a slight crook at the knee, which makes the whole form This singular root is preserved with great care, not only as an illustration of a great principle of vegetation, but for its historical association. There were the graves, emptied of every particle of human dust! Not a trace of anything was left It is known to chemistry that all the flesh and the gelatinous matter having consistency to the bones, are resolved into carbonic acid gas, water and air, while the solid lime dust generally remains But in this case even the phosphate of lime of both graves was all gone! There stood the "gnarly apple tree," as was said at the time, caught in the very act of "robbing the grave"

To explain this phenomenon is not the design of this article Such an explanation could be given and many other similar cases adduced But this fact must be considered the original matter of Roger Williams had been transmitted into the apple tree, it had passed into the woody fibre and was capable of propelling a steam engine, it had bloomed in the apple blossoms and had become pleasant to the eye, and more, it had gone into the fruit from year to year, so that the question might be asked, Who ate Roger Williams?—Hartford Press

A GHOST.—The N. Y. Times says that Jersey City is honored at present with a most mischievous ghost, which has recently made its appearance in a tenement house At first it was content to wander in unoccupied apartments, but recently went into a room where a man was sleeping quietly and robbed him of his shirt, without disturbing it or awakening the owner. His ghostship also pulled off his stockings and carried them to the roof of the building pinned them to the eaves The occupants of the house treat their guest with consideration, and are moving out so that he, she or it may have the whole house to roam in

CIRCULAR

To the Officers and Soldiers Oregon Volunteers

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE
SALEM Oct 23 1866

BY RECENT ACTS OF CONGRESS ALL OFFICERS of the Volunteer Service who were in Commission on March 28th, or subsequently mustered out after April 9th 1865 are entitled to three months extra pay

Enlisted men are entitled to additional bounty in certain cases by Acts of Congress of July 28th, 1866 and the following rules and regulations, together with the form of application and proof by the War Department are published for the guidance and benefit of all concerned

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PAYMENT OF 100 STATES EXTRA PAY TO REGULAR AND VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS, APPROVED JULY 28 1866

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON September 16 1866

1 All applications shall be filed and adjudicated in the order of their receipt, from the 1st day of October 1866 and before any payments are made, shall be classified by regiments battalions or other separate organizations, and no application filed after that period shall be settled until after the first shall have been paid

2 No application shall be entertained unless accompanied by the discharge of the soldier and the affidavit required by the fourteenth section of the Act, as in the further affidavit that he has not received or is he entitled to receive from the United States under any laws or regulations prior to the Act of July 28 1866 more than $100 bounty for any and all military service rendered by him during the late rebellion, over and above the sum not therein claimed

3 All applications for additional bounty must be signed by the Adjutant General of the State, and shall be in the form prescribed by the Act, after verification, and the evidence of identity shall be thereto as is now required and applications from the heirs of deceased soldiers shall be in the form prescribed by the Treasury Department

4 As soon as the examination of the claims of any regiment or other organization is completed, a descriptive list of the persons entitled to the bounty, as shown upon the Muster and Pay Rolls of such regiment or other organization, shall be furnished to the Paymaster, after which no payments will be made to any of the persons named in such list, except upon the production of the original discharge papers, or a certificate from the Second Auditor of the Treasury, that the discharge papers have been filed in his office

5 A register shall be kept in the Paymaster-General's office and also in the office of the Second Auditor of all claims presented under the law, in which shall be entered by number and date of filing the name of each claimant, the regiment or organization in which he served, the rank he held when discharged, the amount claimed, and the action had thereon, and the reasons for rejecting any claim

6 In the applications for bounty as required by the third of these rules, the affiant shall state each and every period of service rendered by the claimant as also that he never served otherwise than as he has been stated

7 Deductions irregularly in the service of the United States or called out for special purposes as State Militia Home Guards etc shall not be included in the general bounty laws, are not included within the meaning of the Act

8 Soldiers enlisted for three years or during the war who were discharged by reason of the termination of the war shall become entitled to the bounty provided for persons who have served out their full term of enlistment, and are entitled to bounty under the Act

9 The minority of heirs claimants for bounty under the Act, must be proven to have existed at the date of its passage Parents shall receive jointly the bounty to which they may be entitled as heirs, unless the father has abandoned the support of his family in which case it shall be paid to the mother Non residence in the United States shall not be a bar to the claim of heirs who would otherwise legally inherit.

The provisions of the Act exclude from its benefits the following cases

1 Those who after serving the full period of their original term, were dishonorably discharged, or its expiration

2 Those discharged during enlistment by way of favor or punishment

3 Those incapacitated on account of disability contracted in the service but not occasioned by wounds received in the line of duty, who shall not have previously served two or three years respectively at the time of discharge

4 Those discharged on account of disability existing at the time of their enlistment

5 The heirs of those who have died since their discharge of wounds or disease not contracted in the service and in the line of duty

6 The surviving soldiers and heirs of deceased soldiers who under previous laws, have received or are entitled to receive a bounty of more than $100 from the United States

7 The surviving soldiers, as well as the heirs of deceased soldiers, when such soldiers have bartered sold assigned, loaned transferred, exchanged or given away their final discharge papers, or any interest in the bounty provided by this or any other Act of Congress

8 The Act of the 28th of July, 1866 creates no right of inheritance beyond those vested by the law under which these heirs received or were entitled to receive the original bounty, and debars certain classes, brothers and sisters of heirs that were entitled to receive the original bounty from any claim for the additional bounty provided by this Act

Respectfully referred to the Attorney General for his opinion on the point whether the rules and regulations as within amended are in conformity with the Act

EDWIN M STANTON,
September 14, 1866 Secretary of War

I have examined these amended regulations, and am of opinion they are in conformity with the Act

HENRY STANBERY,
September 16, 1866 Attorney General

The foregoing rules and regulations are published for the information and guidance of all concerned
